5. Read the story below and answer the questions that follow.

Once upon a time, there was a cow. She went to graze with other cows. In the evening, when they were returning back home, she lost her way and went into the forest. A lion saw her and came near to attack her. First the cow was frightened but after wards she begged the lion to let her go home, as her calf would be hungry waiting for her. She promised to return to the lion after feeding the calf. It was hard for the lion to believe her but he allowed her to go. The cow went home, fed the calf and then returned back to the forest as she had promised. The lion was very pleased to see that the cow had been honest. He gladly let her free. The cow was very happy to meet her calf again. The moral of this story is that you should not be afraid to tell the truth. Honesty always rewards you.
